REPUBLICANS NAME SECOND WARD BACKS DELEGATES TO CONVENTION

Primaries Last Night by Ballot System Bring Out Large Attendance in all the Wards

BOATRIGHT LIKELY TO HEAD THE TICKET

Three Cornered Race for Clerk Looks Like Victory for Thomas Hughes. Goodrich for Treasurer.

Albuquerque Republicans last night elected five delegates from each of the four wards to the city Republican convention which is to be held at the Hotel El Comodoro. The delegates were elected by ballot, there being a large number of names of proposed delegates in each ward and the voters had to select one. The system proved a particularly effective one, the voting being done wholly without confusion.

That D. H. Boatright will be the Republican candidate for mayor now seems certain. The clerkship is a three-cornered fight between Thomas Hughes, Ed Bates and L. W. Galloway, all three claiming a majority of the delegates. It looks as if Hughes has a majority, although the fight will be finished on the floor of the convention.

The delegates elected from the four wards last night, with the number of votes received by each, are as follows:

THREE HUNDRED TREES FOR THE HIGHLAND PARK

City Engineer Gladding Superintending Planting of Ash and Catalpa in City Breathing Spot.

Under the direction of City Engineer James N. Gladding, 300 shade trees are being planted in Highland park. The trees are ash and catalpa. In some places the soil is of such character that it is necessary to blast holes before the trees can be planted. Tough clay is the soil that calls for the dynamite. In a good many cases it has been encountered suddenly, the feet from perfectly friable sandy soil. The tree-planting will be finished in about a week.

Delegation at Meeting Last Night Instruct for Vote Against Mayor Sellers.

WILL NOT BOLT THE CONVENTION

Supporters of the Mayor Confident of His Nomination on First Ballot.

Mayor D. K. B. Sellers will be nominated for mayor on the Democratic ticket tomorrow night on the first ballot, as nearly as a careful canvass of the delegates to the convention can show. While the First ward delegation is against him, and while the Second ward delegates are against him with equal vigor last night, the mayor still has the solid Third and Fourth ward delegations, every man of which is standing solidly for his nomination, and which gives a majority of five votes in the convention.

The Second ward, at its caucus last night in the office of W. Moore Clayton, endorsed Thomas J. Passmore, Sr., for mayor and undertook to place his name before the convention. A resolution was adopted approving the action of the First ward in declaring against Mr. Sellers, but with the Second the delegation will not go to the length of a bolt in their fight on the administration. They do not propose to leave the convention if their candidate fails.

No other candidates were endorsed by the delegation.

PASSMORE STATES POSITION ON WATER WORKS QUESTION

In endorsing Mr. Passmore for the majority nomination last night the Second ward delegates asked that he state his position on the water works question and the following signed statement was placed before the meeting by the candidate:

"I am in favor of municipal ownership of the water supply, to be governed by a non-partisan board of directors. The water works are a public utility and should be owned and operated by the city. I am in favor of submitting to the citizens the question of yes and no on municipal ownership and, if adopted, the mayor and council to at once investigate the cost of a first-class, new and up-to-date water supply system, with cast iron pipe and of sufficient size to meet the requirements and future demands of our rapidly growing city; and that no consideration be given to the present water company, for their franchise guarantee us water up to March 7, 1919, and that we purchase only such part of the water supply company's plant as we can use at its actual value, and all other details have been worked out."

"I would ask that any other candidates for the nomination before the Democratic convention make a statement of their position on this question."

"Respectfully submitted,
THOMAS J. PASSMORE, Senior.

The Third and Fourth ward delegations will meet tonight, their principal business being the selection of candidates for the city council.

KIEKE IS NOT AFTER NOMINATION FOR TREASURER

William Kieke, city treasurer for the past two years, said to the Herald today that he was not a candidate for nomination for the office.

"I let it be known among my friends some time ago that I did not desire to run again," said Mr. Kieke, "and had not thought of it. I am not making any further statement about it, but having seen mention of my possible nomination, desire to say that I am not a candidate."

SELLER'S MECHANICAL WORK

"Big Top" Raised in Few Minutes by Machinery this Morning and Tent City is Complete

PERFORMERS ARRIVING FROM ALL DIRECTIONS

Assembling of Big Sella-Floto-Buffalo Bill Aggregation More Interesting Than Ever This Year.

With the main tent, known to circus folk as the "big top," up the Sella-Floto-Buffalo Bill shows settled down at Hopewell field today for a steady preparation for the opening performances of the season, to give the next Saturday afternoon and night.

From now until Saturday the army of performers—the riders, acrobats, trapeze artists, Indians, cowboys and all the other amazing persons who can startle and amuse the public twice a day and be ready to do it again any time you ask 'em to—will be busy rehearsing their parts in acts and spectacles. By Saturday afternoon they will be ready to step out to the glare of the band or the whirr of the circus's whip in what is said will be the greatest bill ever offered to circus-goers in this country or any other.

The circus came to town yesterday afternoon from the winter quarters in Denver, and those who saw it detain and go into camp got some idea of the magnitude of the organization. It takes forty cars to make up the circus special.

On the forty cars yesterday came almost 700 people, more animals than the circus ever traveled with except Noah, acres of canvas, and all manner of equipment.

Hustle and bustle are weak, inadequate words to describe what happened when that train came in, albeit everybody knew just what he was doing and where he was headed. The matter how hard he hustled. The wheels of the train had scarcely stopped turning when the work of unloading began. Men shouted and ran here and there, opening the doors of the big stock cars that the sleek, glossy horses, the lurching, long-haired camels, the great lumbering elephants, the menagerie animals, the clowns and on to the circus grounds. They strained and pulled at heavy wagons; there came the creaking of wheel axles; the menagerie animals were lowered down the runways. There were commands, shouts of obedience, calls, laughter for the circus man is "always happy."

And then, one by one, as the wagons were lowered, the horses were hitched and the rocking, swaying coaches were lowered to the ground. Not a moment can be lost. Swiftly the men worked, worked at the cars, worked at the lot, where the cook house was taken out. The menagerie animals are unloaded last.

Everybody hustled yesterday on the arrival of the organization, but there wasn't the rush that is required when a performance is to be given the same day, so the erection of the big top was put off until today.

The big tent was put up by a motor that eliminates the work of 25 men, and does the work so easily that a girl can raise the tent by its aid with her left hand. This machine, the tent is the biggest of its kind on record. It requires eight center poles, three more than were needed last year, and its seating capacity is 14,000.

The circus folk—the 200 performers as well as the mechanical force—sleep under canvas on the road. To provide food for that number requires a commissary staff of 46 people. Dixie Eagle, the steward, has to see that 36 long tables are plentifully supplied with food at every meal. Last year the steward got along with 20 assistants, an almost more-than-doubled staff this year is one of the indications of the change in the business.

Buffalo Bill didn't come to town with the rest of the show people yesterday. He stayed behind in Denver to visit a sister, and is expected to arrive tomorrow. He will put up at the Alvarado. On the road the famous old scout and showman will travel in a special car.

The circus is managed by Fred B. Hutchinson, a nephew of the late James A. Bailey, partner of P. T. Barnum. James Dwyer is assistant manager of the huge amusement enterprise. Mr. Hutchinson, like Col. Cody, has a private car. Theirs are the only private cars in the circus special—unless the Indians get into the exclusive list. The rodeos in Buffalo Bill's contingent of thrill-producers have a car to themselves. With them traveling are Carson, an interpreter who has been with Buffalo Bill since his boyhood, twenty years ago.

Mention of the Indians recalls Buffalo Bill's cowboy, and the fact that Johnny Baker, the far-famed champion rifle shot, is the boss of the rough-riders with the show.

A speaking of horses just naturally reminds one that every circus has a horse caravan, and that this one has the boss caravan of the whole special. Only they don't call him the boss caravan—his official title with Sella-Floto is master mechanic, and his name is Bill Curtis. He is a mechanical genius, an inventor of the motor-carriage contrivance, and manager Hutchinson would enjoy seeing Curtis leave the show just about as much as he'd rejoice over the loss of his right arm. And they do say that

KANSAS CITY MAN HELD ON CHARGE OF EMBEZZLEMENT

Police Take J. J. Lipschitz from Train this Morning on Telegram from Sheriff at Los Angeles.

HAD LARGE ASSORTMENT OF JEWELRY ON PERSON

When Santa Fe train No. 10, east-bound from the coast, reached here this morning at 7:30 o'clock, J. J. Lipschitz one of the passengers, was arrested by the local police at the request of Sheriff Hammel, of Los Angeles. Hammel's telegram, received only a short time before the arrival of the train said that Lipschitz, "alias Sit," was wanted for embezzlement.

With Lipschitz on the train were his wife and their year-old baby daughter, and a friend, whose name was given as Bill Pioslan. Mrs. Lipschitz, with her baby in her arms, and Pioslan, left the train with the prisoner and accompanied him to the station house. After he had been searched and locked in a cell, Mrs. Lipschitz went to the West hotel. The police had no reason for holding Pioslan, and he was allowed to go to a hotel also.

Lipschitz was arrested by Officer N. M. Miller, assisted by Station Master J. E. Sinclair. Officer Pablo Lujan took a hand in the arrest when Miller headed the prisoner and his companions for the station house.

Lipschitz, however, offered no trouble from the start. He readily admitted his identity, and asserted at the station house that he was ready to return to Los Angeles and face the charge without extradition papers or any other formality.

Search of the prisoner brought to light four gold watches, two gold rings, a gold bracelet, a diamond horseshoe brooch and a twenty-dollar gold piece in the form of a charm. He had comparatively little cash.

He insisted that the jewelry was his personal property. The telegram from Sheriff Hammel gave no details as to the nature of the alleged embezzlement. To a reporter Lipschitz insisted that he had no idea of what the demand for his arrest was based on, but the police say he told them that the case resulted from trouble over a gambling game. He said he was ready to go and face any charge that might have been brought.

The police say that on the train Lipschitz attempted to pass some of the jewelry to his wife supposedly for purposes of concealment.

Lipschitz told a reporter that he was 27 years old, a machinery salesman, and that his home was in Kansas City. He was on his way to Kansas City, he said, after a six-months' stay in Los Angeles. His wife had relatives in the coast city, he said, and they had been visiting them while he worked up business for his machinery house.

EISMAN BROTHERS HEAD BUYERS IN BOSTON MARKET

Firm Well Known in Southwest First to Buy a Canadian Clip. Market Remains Strong.

The American Wool and Cotton Reporter, reviewing last week's trading in the Boston wool market, says: "Sales for the week in Boston have been $25,000 pounds."

The increased sales of the past week are accounted for in part by the fact that stocks of wool are at such a low ebb that many of those who would gladly make further purchases are unable to find wools of the type desired. In several instances worried spinners who have visited the market in search of fine and fine medium staple territories have been forced to accept clothing wools or turn to a similar foreign staple.

Prices on many grades have been advanced a cent or two a pound, and the firm, healthy tone shown for weeks past is still apparent. One of the most interesting features of the recent past is the announcement from South Alberta that the greater part of the wool in this section of the Canadian west has been purchased by a firm of Boston wool dealers. Advice received on Tuesday as to the effect that Joe Strang, buyer of Eisman Bros., in the first buyer from the States to purchase a Canadian clip. Rumor has it that the price paid is about 3 cents more than was realized for the same wools a year ago, the increase amounting to something over $50,000, a very substantial windfall for the wool growers of that region.

It is reported that the purchases of Eisman Bros. in that section will be approximately a million and a quarter to a million and a half pounds, and that they have under contract something like five million pounds of domestic territories. While not posing as factors in foreign wools, the Canadian purchases puts this exporting firm in the forefront as importers. It is stated that there has been comparatively little territory secured during the week, and in view of the stock in the hands of most of our dealers having been reduced to the vanishing point some time ago, a few lots of consigned wools are still in the lot, but supplies of all grades are extremely limited.

A sale of 50,000 pounds of fine medium Utah is reported at 16 cents, the largest individual sale of the week. A slightly increased demand is noted for scoured wools, though this is probably more apparent than real. A few lots of consigned wools are still in the lot, but supplies of all grades are extremely limited.

The demand does not require to be of large proportions in order to appear relatively much greater than it actually is the case. There have been some fair sales of scoured territories at prices somewhat in advance of what was realized a week ago for the same wools.

Sales of fine wools have been made as high as 60 cents a pound, though a few lots of medium wools are very few. A greater activity has been seen in medium wools and those which might be purchased in the vicinity of 45 to 52 cents. There are no accumulations of scoured wools in the market, dealers reporting that they are able to bill out everything coming forward practically as soon as it is received. The largest sale noted during the week was a lot of 25,000 pounds of fine stained scoured at 46 cents a pound, a very desirable lot of wools at the price. Another lot of 10,000 pounds of fine Australian scoured at 45 cents, a seemingly low figure for this wool, but it can be remembered that the Australian scoured will show a shrinkage of 10 to 12 1/2 per cent, bringing the price well toward half a dollar, if not over that figure.
